Explore the Wild: Wildlife Presentation & Talk

Library Gymnasium

Monday, June 9, 2025

4:00 pm - 6:15 pm

Discover the wonders of nature right in our own backyard! Join us for an engaging Wildlife Presentation and Talk featuring local Conservation Stewards Jessica Melsted and Robert Heughes.

Robert Heughes has been actively monitoring the bluebird trail in partnership with the Vegreville Wildlife Federation. A passionate birder and photographer, Robert enjoys sharing his knowledge of local species and has done talks on the bluebird trail to groups such as the Rotary Club. You can read the reports at <https://vwf.ca/page10.html>. His love for the outdoors shines through his conservation work and storytelling both visually and verbally.

Jessica Melsted is a wildlife biologist and naturalist living in Vegreville. With over a decade of experience in the biology field, she has worked across the prairie provinces and as far north as Nunavut. Jessica is an avid birder, amateur photographer, hunter, and all-around nature lover. Having grown to love the Vegreville area, she's excited to share what wildlife can be found right here in town — and how we can all become more connected to it.

Free to attend – Registration open, walk-in's welcome.

This talk is perfect for families, birders, nature enthusiasts, and anyone curious about local wildlife and conservation efforts.
